Pastor's Nickel - Ministering to Emerging Adults

Part 3: Review how your church supports Emerging Adult Ministry

Pastor's Nickel

This week is the conclusion to our three-part series on how we can minister to emerging adults. In week one we discussed how ministering to emerging adults is as simple as talking to them when they are at church. In week two we discussed how we can minister to emerging adults when they are not in the church by supporting their parents and exploring how they are being impacted by the uncertainty in their emerging adult kid's life.

Finally, to begin ministering to emerging adults talk to members of council and your church pastors. Ask what ministries, job descriptions, and budgets the church has that are dedicated to meeting the needs of emerging adults. Ask them what the ministries need. Ask them how you could be involved. Remember emerging adults want to talk to people who have found an answer to the questions: who am I? Where do I belong? What is my purpose? That is my fifteen cents on ministering to emerging adults!
